

Size? Picking the Correct Size harness.

Determining the proper size of a harness for your dog is based on 2 things - weight and dimensions. Weight gets us into the ball park and the dimensions for neck, chest and waist give us a more specific determination. Because each dog is unique we've designed the harness to provide as much flexibility as possible. While some dogs gain weight with age - many may slim down. Certain hip and spine issues can cause the chest of dogs to deepen, while their hips and waist become narrower.

With the 4 sizes currently offered, you should be able to get a very good fit for virtually any dog from 10 to 220 pounds. Some cases we may require putting a larger front half together with the next size down in Hip Lift, we are happy to put the two together to provide a more optimal fit.
